Roger Goodell Commissioner National Football League 345 Park Avenue New York, NY 10154

June 18, 2018

Dear Mr. Goodell:

The undersigned organizations, each of which is devoted to protecting the full civil and human rights of all Americans, write to strongly object to the National Football League's coercive new rule requiring players to stand during the national anthem.¹ This policy represses peaceful, non-disruptive protest of police violence against unarmed African Americans and other people of color. It is disappointing that a league built on grit and competition lacks the constitution to stomach a call for basic equality and fairness.

Kneeling during the anthem seeks to raise awareness of police brutality and violence routinely perpetrated upon unarmed and nonviolent people of color. Even though people of color are only around 37% of the population, they are about 63% of unarmed people killed by the police.² Police are twice as likely to kill unarmed African Americans as white people.³ African Americans experience physical force or its threat during police encounters up to three times as often as whites; Hispanics up to twice as often.⁴ Over and over again, our racially-biased criminal justice system causes families of color to mourn loved ones killed and maimed by excessive force. Afterward, this same system routinely fails to hold unreasonably violent officers accountable.

The NFL in particular should be better attuned to the ongoing struggle for racial justice. Yet, its own franchise suffers from significant racial disparities. 70% of NFL players are black, yet 75% of head coaches and 100% of team CEOs and Presidents are white men.⁵ No team has a majority owner who is African American or Hispanic.⁶ Racially-biased police violence can also threaten players' safety;⁷ the recent decision to mandate the silence of players wishing to demonstrate for civil rights is even more appalling against the backdrop of the glaring racial disparities in the NFL.

President Trump, responding to the NFL's new rule, said to those who take a knee, "[Y]ou shouldn't be playing, you shouldn't be there, maybe you shouldn't be in the country." This racebaiting attempt to alienate people of color is repugnant to America's core values. Athletes who choose to kneel during the national anthem to peacefully protest police violence embody the best patriotic ideals of our nation. Protesters striving to create a more inclusive democracy define the history of this country; there is no better way to honor our national symbols than to fight for equal justice for all.

Compelling players to stand for the national anthem erodes the values that the flag represents and tells the world that the NFL does not care about racial justice. We urge you to reconsider your position.
